
Strikers at Steel of West Virginia ordered to stay within limits

Friday, 01 Sep, 2006

It is reported that Judge John Cummings sided with Steel of West Virginia after the company filed a complaint Tuesday in Cabell Circuit Court against the United Steel Workers of America Local Union No. 37 and has granted an injunction on Wednesday limiting the actions of striking members of a steelworkers union.

The complaint by Steel of West Virginia said that the union has harassed non striking employees at Steel of West Virginia, blocking gates, standing in the path of vehicles and threatening violence.

The union has carried out a strike, picketing in front of the Huntington plant. Since 11PM on August 25th.
