
Regina Ipsco worried about Katarina

Wednesday, 31 Aug, 2005

Ipsco officials in Regina are concerned about the effects of Hurricane Katrina on plant in Alabama. The steel company says the facility, about 30 kilometers north of Mobile, was spared any flooding because it's slightly higher than sea level and the storm damage is minimal.

But company spokesperson John Comrie says a lot of employees may have lost their homes. Comrie says the company is making generators available to the affected workers.
