
Umicore to build car catalyst plant in India

Saturday, 12 Jul, 2008

Reuters reported that Belgian metals and specialty materials maker Umicore will build an automotive catalyst factory in India.

Umicore in a statement said that "The investment will involve the development of a Greenfield site with a production capacity allowing to equip approximately 1.5 million cars yearly." But it did not give a value of the investment.

For more news visit at www.steelguru.com